NEW & NOTABLE

The sporty Millwood drycool polo ($75) from Abacus is made of a cotton/polyester drycool pique, but feels like a cotton polo on the outside. However, the polyester drycool fabric gives the polo the same features as a functional polo; the wicking draws moisture away from your body keeping you comfortable and dry. Features a pocket on the left chest, and a print on the right sleeve. Comes in apple/cactus, lagoon/Hawaiian ocean and white/navy. abacus-outdoor.com

Callaway claims their new, X-24 Hot Irons ($699-$899) are the longest, most accurate X-Series irons ever. How'd they do it? Well, they utilized Callaway's proprietary VFT Face Technology, 360-degree undercut channel and a precise center of gravity to create a large and effective hitting area. Look for a new Stealth PVD (Physical Vapor Deposition) finish that reduces glare. callawaygolf.com

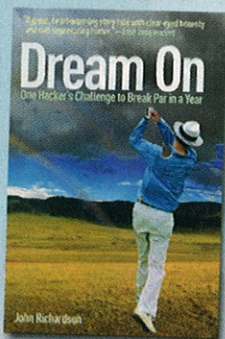

The affordable, efficient and easy-to-use Belt Caddy ($20) securely holds your tees, balls, divot tool, ball marker and glove. So no more carrying lots of sharp, bulky items in your pockets? Sounds good to us! Clips on to your belt or directly to your clothing. golftools.org

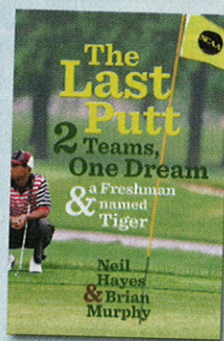

BOOKS

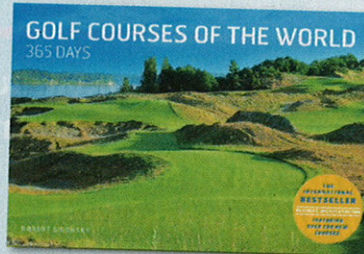

Certified Clinical Hypnotherapist Kelly Sullivan Walden's new book Zone Golf ($19) claims to be the only book that demonstrates how self-hypnosis can help you master your golf game. Follow her program, she claims, and you'll say goodbye to the yips for good. Comes with an accompanying audio CD of self-hypnosis tracks.

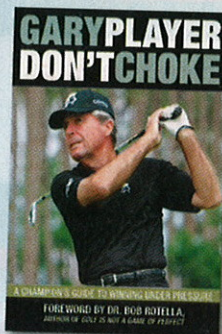

A number-one bestseller in the UK, John Richardson's Dream On ($24), chronicles the 24-handicapper's quest to break par—in one year (while maintaining his full-time job and family life). We won't give away the ending, but it sounds like he read our magazine.

Written by Neil Hayes and Brian Murphy, The Last Putt ($26) tells the story of the 1995 NCAA Men's Golf Championship—and the changing face of golf. Who played? An "all-American" OSU team against the culturally diverse Stanford squad of Notah Begay, Casey Martin and, oh yeah, Tiger Woods. The face of golf was never the same.

First published in 2005, Robert Sidorsky's updated version of Golf Courses of the World: 365 Days ($30) includes information and photos on 365 of the world's most beautiful golf courses, 200 of which are new entries. Stretching 744 pages, it includes 500 photos, and plenty of information on courses open to the public.

Gary Player isn't just one of golf's most recognizable players, he's also one of its most successful businessmen. Now, in his new memoir, cowritten with Dr. Bob Rotella, called Don't Choke: A Champion's Guide to Winning Under Pressure ($20), he writes about the pressure-packed situations he faced, how he handled them and what you can learn from his experiences.
